

Title: Technical Research and Writing Intern

Description: BrightArrow Technologies is currently seeking a Technical Research and Writing Intern to complete a competitive analysis comparison chart of mass notification software companies and their products and features. This internship is designed to identify, research, and write a technical communications document that is clear, concise, complete, and accurate.

This is a virtual internship; intern will be working from their remote location.

This is a 3-to-6-month paid internship, depending on the candidate's availability.

Responsibilities:

- Research the market, analyze results, turn data and insights into marketing content by writing and developing a comparison chart of mass notification software companies.
- Strong technical writing skills.
- Organization and prioritization.
- Need the persistence and creativity necessary to identifying technical information from a number of companies.
- Create analysis reports and tables for viewing in HTML web pages.
- Work with other team members to get clarification on how to present and organize feature lists and product benefits.
